

Oslo, 18. april 2023

Information in English:

Facts about the 2023 strike

LO's demands were:

- Improved purchasing power for our members
- An additional increase for low-paid workers, many of whom are women
- This year's settlement should reduce inequalities

What the demands were in terms of kroner and øre:

- The mediation proceedings are confidential and any leaking of information is a criminal offence
- LO can therefore not reveal specific details of the demands or offers that were put forward
- Nevertheless, LO's demand was that the overall effect of the general increase, low-pay increases and local increases should be an improvement purchasing power for the majority of our members, with an added increase for members in low-paid sectors

Number of strikers

- About 23,000 LO members are on strike from Monday, 17 April
- A further 16,500 will come out on strike on Friday, 21 April
- Additional members can be taken out subject to five days' notice
- In total, some 185,000 LO members are affected by the industrial action